

About Us

MedHomes director Manolis Michaelides has been constructing and designing homes of the highest standard for the past ten years, coming from a family where his father is a qualified civil engineer who received his degrees in the U.K has helped him to produce unique styles and add those small details that count to every home buyer. Dealing mainly with Cypriot buyers he has managed to achieve an excellent reputation for his building quality at very competitive prices.

As the property market has been growing vastly in Cyprus during the last couple of years he has expanded his efforts to building the same high quality homes for other nationalities, mainly British home and investment buyers offering the same standards with the aim to make people feel safe and at home.

MedHomes promises to try to make the buying procedure as easy and stress free as possible offering you English spoken staff that will be able to assist you with ideas and choices of fittings to make your property the home you have always dreamed of.

We will be with you every step of the way until you receive your keys but most importantly we will be around AFTER for anything you may need that is a promise!
